

Share One's NSHome and NSMobile Alerts to Members

An article appeared in Credit Union Times today concerning a discovery made by another core vendor and an apparent flaw in their Internet banking products. Their email alert to the member contained a transaction number, and that number was used maliciously to gain access to member data.

We want to make you aware that Share One's NSHome and NSMobile products do not send any member or transaction information within the email alert. The member is sent a message directing them to login securely to their NSHome or NSMobile message center to view the alert details.

Please contact us if you have additional questions.